

Fake currency notes in Rs 2,000 denomination seized in West Bengal, 2 youths arrested by police

Economy

Updated Oct 13, 2018 | 20:53 IST | PTI

News > Business > Economy

Two youths who were carrying fake currency notes in Rs 2,000 denomination have been arrested by the police in West Bengal. The arrested youths were produced before a local court as well.

currency notes in Rs 2,000 denomination (Representational Image) | Photo Credit: Thinkstock

Malda: The police arrested two persons and seized fake currency notes with a face value of Rs 1 lakh from their possession in West Bengal's Malda district, a police officer said Saturday. In the early hours of Saturday, a police team found two youths moving suspiciously in a motorcycle in Baisnabnagar area. They detained the youths and during a search found fake currency notes with a face value of Rs 1 lakh in their possession, the officer said. The counterfeit notes were in the denomination of Rs 2000, he said. Both the arrested youths were produced before a local court which remanded them to seven days police custody, the officer added.

Source: <https://www.timesnownews.com/business-economy/economy/article/fake-currency-notes-in-rs-2000-denomination-seized-in-west-bengal-2-youths-arrested-by-police/298949>